New York and Silicon Valley, November 23, 2026 — Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison LLP announced today that Gabriel Gregson and Justina Chen have joined the firm in Silicon Valley as partners in the Finance Group within the Corporate Department. Gregson and Chen will advise a wide range of clients in the Silicon Valley office, building on their experience advising private equity sponsors and their portfolio companies, technology companies, corporate borrowers and investors on sophisticated financing transactions, including complex technology investments.

"Gabe and Justina have built their practices around the most demanding leveraged finance transactions for private equity sponsors and technology companies, from large-cap acquisition debt to restructurings and everything in between," said Angelo Bonvino, global head of the Corporate Department. "Their depth of experience will be invaluable to our clients that are operating at the forefront of technology dealmaking, especially as the AI and digital infrastructure spaces continue to rapidly evolve."

"The technology sector's need for sophisticated counsel is surging as the industry rapidly evolves," said Nader Mousavi, partner in the firm's new Silicon Valley office. "Gabe and Justina have the exact mix of capabilities that our Silicon Valley clients need on their most complex deals. Their addition will strengthen our practice across the firm, and particularly for our clients on the West Coast."

Gregson advises private equity sponsors and their portfolio companies, as well as technology companies, corporate borrowers and investors, on sophisticated financing transactions across the capital structure. His technology practice spans software, AI, fintech, digital health and data analytics, and he has counseled some of the world's largest technology companies on strategic investments, financings, acquisitions and commercial arrangements, including AI compute and cloud services agreements. He structures tailored financing solutions and advises on secured debt facilities, prepayment facilities, preferred equity and convertible note financings, as well as NAV and fund-level subscription facilities. He has been recognized by Chambers USA as a Leading Lawyer in Banking & Finance (California) since 2012 and is recognized by IFLR1000 as Highly Regarded for Banking. He earned a B.Com. (Finance) from the University of British Columbia and a J.D. from the New York University School of Law.

Gregson has led representations for leading private equity sponsors, their portfolio companies and other public and private companies, including advising Genstar Capital on fund-level subscription and revolving credit facilities for its flagship funds and in numerous portfolio company transactions, such as the private unitranche financing for Clarience Technologies' acquisition of Safe Fleet; Genstar Capital and TA Associates in the first- and second-lien financing for their acquisitions of wealthtech platform Orion Advisor Solutions and Brinker Capital, and Orion in subsequent financings; Neogen in the senior secured financing for its Reverse Morris Trust combination with 3M's food safety business and the subsequent refinancing of its credit facilities; Alo Yoga on its credit facilities; J.C. Flowers and its portfolio companies, including TRICOR and ELMC, in acquisition and dividend recapitalization financings; and Sumeru Equity Partners in its acquisition of compensation software company beqom and its investment in AI-native tax data platform K1x, as well as the related financings. He has also advised technology companies and investors, including Conversica, Glooko and Nexa Equity, on acquisition, growth and recapitalization financings, and Gores Group SPACs on their business combinations with Polestar, Luminar Technologies and Matterport.

Chen is also an experienced advisor on complex transactions, both in-house and in private practice. Prior to rejoining her most recent law firm, she served as an assistant vice president and a member of the leveraged finance legal team for a leading global investment management and financial services firm. She earned a B.S. from the University of North Carolina and a J.D. from the University of Michigan Law School.

Chen has represented clients on a variety of transactions and technology investments, including advising H.I.G. Capital and its portfolio company, MIS Acquisition, in its senior secured term loan and revolving facility to finance the take-private acquisition of Converge Technology Solutions and repayment; Advent International and its portfolio companies in multiple transactions, including acquisitions of Maxar Technologies and Orveon; Hilco Global in its formation of a joint venture with TPG Angelo Gordon; and AMC Entertainment in a series of debt refinancing transactions with key creditor groups.

The Paul, Weiss global Finance Group is one of the most dynamic practices in the industry, advising borrowers, investors and lenders on every type of complex financing instrument in the market. The group's work encompasses borrower and sponsor-side leveraged financings, award-winning securitizations and complex derivatives transactions across a broad array of structures.
